Congress is to meet Monday. The indications are that Champ Clark will be re-elected Speaker and but little time will be lost in getting down to business.

Emperor Charles, of Austria, and Enver Pasha, the Turkish War Minister, are in Berlin to confer with the Kaiser and Gen. von Hindenburg. There was not much gaiety about the conference.

The 1917 class at Annapolis was graduated Thursday, two months ahead of time. Ten members of the class of 183 will be married this week or next week, establishing a record for graduating classes. Four Kentucky boys will graduate.

The Cadiz Record suggests that a commission be named to decide what offices are useless and recommend to the next Legislature a list of those that should be abolished. A good plan would be to abolish all commissions, and offices created since the adoption of the present constitution and take a fresh start. The duties of all of them can be performed, as they once were, by regular State and county officers.

CLOSED LAST NIGHT

Women's Missionary Society
Concluded a Profitable Meeting.

A Woman's Missionary Society of the Louisville Conference closed its sessions last night with the same interest and enthusiasm that had characterized the session for three days.

The published program was carried out with but few changes. The day meetings were practically all day, as the ladies of the church served luncheon in the church each day at noon.

Miss Mabel Head, a returned missionary from China, was the principal speaker Thursday night and her talk on the work in the Orient was heard with the keenest interest.

Yesterday was devoted to the receiving of reports, adopting resolutions and other routine business. The visitors will return to their homes today.

HOLLWEG'S TALK DODGES ISSUE

President Will Deal With Fundamentals of American Liberty and Safety.

SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

Officials Believe U. S. Must Unite With Democracies Against Autocracies.

Washington, Mar. 30.—While it is assumed from the defensive measure already taken by the military arm of the government that President Wilson in addressing congress next week, will ask for war against Germany or a declaration that a state of war exists, it is known that he will speak along broad lines, dealing lightly with incidents leading up to the present crisis.

The general situation has not been changed by the speech of the German chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, according to the view tonight of officials who read portions of the address dealing with the United States and submarine warfare.

Germany, it was said, has consistently attempted to lay the blame for her acts on other nations. On previous occasions President Wilson has taken the position that Germany is in no way justified in carrying on submarine ruthlessness because of the British blockade.

Only complete abandonment of unrestricted submarine warfare could change the attitude of the United States, it has been said semi-officially recently, and press reports indicate that the German chancellor did not even discuss that possibility.

The greatest point under consideration by the administration at the present time is whether Germany has not unmistakably shown, through a long succession of violations of international law, that the United States must definitely unite with the liberal democracies of the world against the four most complete autocracies, both for its present and its future safety. All hope has been lost, as shown in the note to Germany as to the treaty of 1828, in the good faith of the present German rulers. The Belgian invasion and deportations, the ruthless submarine warfare, the attempts to embroil neutral countries in plots, and the general conduct of the war have convinced many officials that the German military system as at present directed is a permanent danger to the world's peace.

German plots in this country, running back almost to the beginning of the war and finally culminating in the Zimmerman note to ally Japan and Mexico in war against this country, are regarded as evidence of the evil of the general system.

Washington Menser, a farmer of the Mannington neighborhood, was found dead on a bed in his home, Wednesday. His wife and son had left home a little while before and he was alone at the time. TURMOIL IN SPAIN

Unrest That May Precede a Revolution Like Russia Had.

GENERAL STRIKE BREWING

Internal Dissensions Because of The War Policy Aggravated By Food Shortage.

Paris, Mar. 30.—While a Ilavas dispatch from Madrid announces the publication of a decree suspending the constitutional guarantees throughout Spain, it gives no reason for this act. The Temps, however, reports that conferences have been going on at the "house of the people" in Madrid between delegations of trades unions who were organizing a general strike.

The newspaper adds that on account of the economic crisis in Spain, the government has taken a firm yet conciliatory attitude. It has instructed the governors of the provinces to report immediately to Madrid the situation of the unemployed, classifying them according to trades.

The Temps says the economic difficulties in Spain are due partly to Germany's submarine blockade interrupting exports and imports. It adds that the situation in the Canary islands by the reason of the submarine blockade is extremely distressing.

PRELIMINARY MONDAY NIGHT

To Select An Oratorical Contestant at Paducah, Early In May.

Monday night will take place the annual preliminary contest to choose the representative of the High School in the Western Kentucky Oratorical Contest, which will be held at Paducah, early in May. The contest promises to be the most hotly contested of any held here in many years. There are four contestants, Henry Abernathy, Wallace Henderson, Ben King Harned and John Hanbery. Two of these are Seniors and two are Juniors, so the contest will be not only for the personal honor that goes with victory but also the honor that will go to the class of the winner. The boys have been practicing faithfully and no matter who wins the school feels that it will have a representative who will be able to take his stand in the "hall of fame" along with the others who have represented the Orange and Black in years past.

The subjects of the contestants are: Henry Abernathy—"The New South."

Wallace Henderson—"Dreams."

Ben King Harned—"Patriotism."

John Hanbery—"Liberty."

Yesterday the Annual Older Boys' conference convened at Paducah. Several local boys are attending. The conference is for the uplift of the young men of Kentucky and is under the direction of the State Y. M. C. A. The boys will be entertained by the people of Paducah and there will be a big banquet given by the Rotary Club. The conference will last through Sunday.

MUST PAY ON ALL.

A special from Frankfort says that affirming the Franklin Circuit Court in the case of the Hillman Land and Iron Company against the Commonwealth, the Appellate Court held that a corporation must pay a license tax of thirty cents on the $1,000 authorized capital stock. The company insisted that it had to pay only on the issued capital stock. The court held that the taxes must be paid on the authorized capital stock not issued.

The one fly in the farmers' ointment is the growing apprehensions felt over the hegra of negroes. Load after load departs for the north and east until only the old and second quality hands are left on some farms. With preparations going on for a bumper crop, the labor shortage is not pleasing, in view of the further fact that many young white men may answer a call for volunteer soldiers in case of war.

HOUSEBREAKING.

The bowling alley on Main street was broken into Wednesday night and about $8 was taken from a slot machine, which was broken open with a stone. A rear window was broken out.

DOCK BOND GETS 5 YEARS

For His Attack on Constable Tom Winfree With a Corn Knife.

The trial of Dock Bond, who assaulted constable T. S. Winfree with a corn knife and came near killing him, was concluded Wednesday evening and the jury without much delay brought in a verdict giving Bond the maximum sentence of 5 years. Bond's wife and several small children were present in court, giving evidences of poverty, and sympathy was felt for them, but the commonwealth made out a very strong case. Mr. Winfree went to Bond's house in an official capacity and levied on some corn and after he started out, Bond attacked him viciously from behind his back, almost splitting his skull on one side and inflicting wounds that endangered his life. Other witnesses testified that the attack was unprovoked and apparently murderous.

Yesterday some commonwealth cases were tried and several fines imposed in some of them. No important cases were tried.

The Herald says 1,500 dozen eggs were brought to Hartford one day last week.

HOLY LAND THE SCENE

Of Another Successful Drive By The British Troops.

TURKS PUT TO ROUTE

British Make Only Advance in France—Neville Bourjonval Is Captured.

For the first time since the British and French troops began their seizure of ground between Arras and St. Eloi, evacuated by the Germans, a period of comparative calm has set in. The only advance recorded by either the British or French was the capture of the village of Neville Bourjonval, about ten miles northwest of Roisel, by the troops of Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig. Artillery activity is reported from the front held by the French troops, still being quite violent in Champagne on the sector of Maisons de Champagne, around Hill 304 near Verdun, and in Dorraine near Emmerival.

Along the eastern front in Russia, the situation remains unchanged. The Russian and Austro-German armies being virtually inactive owing to the thaw. Petrograd reports the regular of Russian attacks along the Onega and Csobayos rivers in Rumania, but says the Russians put down an attempt by the Teutonic allies to advance along the Fokshani-Tecutchev road.

TURKISH ARMY DEFEATED.

The British forces operating in Palestine have made an advance of fifteen miles against the Turks, capturing the entire staff of the fifty-third Turkish division, including a general and 900 men.

Enver Pasha, the Turkish minister of war has visited German army headquarters to confer with Emperor William, Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff, chief quartermaster general.

The Austrians are keeping up their offensive against the Italians on the eastern front in the Austro-Italian theater. After having for several days heavily shelled positions on the Carso front, the Austrians delivered an attack but met with repulse, according to the Italian war office.

Nothing new has come through concerning the operations in Macedonia.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Cuban rebellion is about over.

The French coast town of Dunkirk was bombarded by a German torpedo boat Wednesday, sixty shots being fired.

The Spring thaw on the eastern front now makes the threatened German advance impossible, at least for some time.

The Illinois house of representatives killed all pending dry legislation including the state-wide prohibition referendum bill.

Forecasting that the next six months will find 1,500,000 men in this country under arms, Senator Kirby of Arkansas, left for Washington. He is one of those who opposed the armed neutrality bill.

Rear Admiral Jas. H. Oliver has been named as governor of the Danish West Indies, which are to be taken over by the United States to-day, upon payment of $25,000,000. The islands are to be profitable as a naval base.

Carl R. Wheeler, who wanted to join the army, was an inch too short. A half dozen guardsmen volunteered to bring Wheeler up to requirements and after an hour's massaging and rolling the applicant was again brought before the examining physician and was accepted. Wheeler's stature was said to have been decreased as a result of carrying sacks of cement.

The southern wing of the retreating German army is slowly recoiling along a ten-mile front under the furious onslaughts of the French. The first section of the great Coucy-St. Gobain forests has been completely cleared of the invaders, and General Nivelle's troops are now face to face with the last formidable natural barrier which lies between them and Laon—the plateau of St. Gobain.

After a conference with Rear-Admiral Badger, chairman of the site inspection board, Secretary Danie's Thursday said he would announce next week the selection of the site for the naval armor plate and projectile plants. The department has already designed and ordered machinery for the projectile plant and will begin actual construction on both plants as soon as possible.

Precious Balm of Gilead.

Among the ancient Jews, so indispensable were scents considered for the bridal toilet that one-twelfth of the bridal dower was set apart for their purchase. JACK'S RED CROSS GIRL

By JOSEPH T. RESCEL.

He, on the Texas border, called her his "Red Cross Girl;" we, in the big government hospital, "Merry Sunshine." Indeed she was to us a ray of sunshine. Moving among us with her cheery "good morning," she arranged a pillow here and there, while beaming into upturned faces.

Nature had made her light. She was light of complexion, and beneath a spotless cap of white, in the bright morning sun, her light hair shone like newly beaten gold. She had laughing blue eyes that sparkled like rippling waters.

The big ward—our ward—was filled to its capacity. The sudden call of the militia to the Rio Grande had exacted its full quota of sick men. As each pain-racked figure was brought in, Merry Sunshine could not conceal her anxiety. It might be her Jack, dear old Jack, so noble, good and handsome, who had been one of the first to leave for the border. Wishing to be near him and also to serve her country, she had followed her sweetheart the day after his departure, but many miles still separated them.

One bright August morning they carried into the ward a khaki-clad, drollish figure, who waved an imaginary saber with his unbandaged arm, shouting wildly, "Up and at them, Jack; up and at them. Good boy, Jack; see them run. They're breaking, they're breaking. We'll chase 'em into the gulf."

With eager, trembling hands she examined the regimental number on the sick man's uniform. It was the same regiment as her Jack's. Was it possible this tossing, fever-stricken form knew her sweetheart?

Far into the night she sat by the wounded man's side.

In the cool quiet of the early morning a few days later, Merry Sunshine's attention was rewarded by a gentle sigh from the new patient. He was freed of his delirium and his eyes slowly grew clearer. A wan smile parted his lips as she bent over him.

"Jack's sweetheart, the Red Cross girl," he whispered joyfully, "I know you from the picture in his watch case."

With a cry of delight she heard what followed.

"Yes, Jack was by my side when we got across a stretch of cactus-land during some drill maneuvers. I remember my horse pitching forward, my head striking the ground and nothing else until this moment."

The voice gradually weakened. Almost inaudibly he mumbled, "I'm tired now, very tired. Letter—inside pocket—blouse—which I was to mail—because Jack—stationed long way from post office." His eyes closed and he lapsed into peaceful slumber.

"A letter from Jack! Oh, how good!" A bell rang the call to duty. The letter must wait. With a long, sweet kiss she placed it over her heart in the folds of her immaculate uniform.

Months passed and the strained situation at the border had calmly subsided. A long troop train pulled into the station of a northern city amid shrieking whistles and the hoarse shouts of the multitude upon the platform.

Accompanied by the grinding of brakes and release of air, the train came to a full stop.

At the edge of the crowd a fair-faced woman energetically waved her country's flag with a small, ungloved hand.

Shifting her intent gaze continually over each vestibule as men after man descended the expression in her eyes showed eager expectancy while she scanned each healthy, sun-browned face.

Why did he not appear? Could it be possible he had not come? It was his regiment. Had anything happened?

It seemed to her tension-wrought mind that they had all disembarked. The flag of her country was firmly clasped in her hand, as with her head erect she tried to force her way through the crowd.

A tall, well-built militiaman, who noted the look of anxiety on her face, politely lifted his hat and asked if he could be of service. She thanked him and explained. In a quiet, even tone he said, "Passageway, please." The crowd respectfully fell aside and he conducted her to the cars.

Merry Sunshine arrived with him at an open vestibule, just as three figures started to descend. A big man in the center, supported by his two companions, saw her coming. He attempted to rush forward, but his uncertain steps were checked by his comrades, who sang out, "Steady, Jack, steady!"

A deep flash of color shot to his cheeks. His eyes, clear and bright, watched the figure that came rapidly toward him and eagerly sprang up the steps. Strength returned suddenly as her arms encircled his neck and she placed upon his lips a long, sweet kiss. Her anxious voice questioned him. "Jack, what is it? Tell me! You are ill? You are injured?"

"It is nothing, little sweetheart," he said. "I had the fever. Feel a trifle shaky, that's all."

His arms quickly went around her, and there, amid that vast throng, we lost our "Merry Sunshine," and Jack, good old Jack, regained his "Little Red Cross girl."

DIZZY SPELLS

Relieved After Taking Two Bottles
Of Cardui, Says Tennessee
Lady.

Whitwell, Tenn.—Mrs. G. P. Cartwright, of this place, writes: "About four years ago the dizzy spells got so bad that when I would start to walk I would just pretty near fall. I wasn't past doing my work, but was very much run-down."

I told my husband I thought Cardui would help me, as a lady who lived next door to me had taken a great deal, and told me to try it. This was when we were living in Kentucky.

My husband got me a bottle and I took it according to directions. It helped me so much that he went back and got me another bottle. I got a whole lot better and just quit taking it. I got over the dizzy spells. I took no other medicine at that time nor since for this trouble. No, I've never regretted taking Cardui.

I felt just fine when I finished the second bottle.

Purely vegetable, mild and gentle in its action, Cardui, the woman's tonic, may be the very medicine you need. If you suffer from symptoms of female troubles, give Cardui a trial. All druggists. NC-129

How to Treat a Cut.

When you have a cut, a scratch, a bruise or any other kind of injury, paint it with iodine. As soon as injured, dip a toothpick with cotton rolled on the end of it in the iodine, and paint over the wound without washing. The iodine will kill all the germs in the dirt that gets into the wound, while washing only drives the germs farther into the flesh. When painted with the iodine, wrap the injured part in a clean cloth for a couple of days.

Tailor Bird's Nest.

The tailor bird of India, a tiny yellow creature, makes a most curious nest. To escape snakes and monkeys this bird takes a dead leaf, flies up into a tree, and with a fiber for a thread and its bill for a needle, sews the leaf to a green one hanging from the tree, an opening to the nest thus formed being left at the top. The leaf, apparently hanging from a twig, would never be taken for a nest.

Modern Poetry.

Poetry, like every great force, has followed an evolution of its own, and as it comes to us today we may trace in it this general tendency. It has tended away from the epic and the expression of broad communal or national feeling, and expresses now far more than it did, in far more subtle and intricate directions, the feelings of the individual. If it gives voice on public, national or international events it does so from a far more specialized and personal point of view than of old, and with something of the acerbity and narrow intellectual outlook of the party politician. The strength of modern poetry hardly seems to lie for the future in this direction.

Appropriate Heading.

Helress—"I want everyone to know that our engagement is broken." "All right. I'll have it put in the papers, under the heading 'Business Troubles.'"—Life.

DISINFECTORS FOR THE ARMY

New Machines for Sterilizing Soldiers' Equipment to Be Used in Fight Against Disease.

Preparedness consists of an adequate supply of other things than munitions of war, battleships and trained men, and our government has recognized one of these further needs by providing for the safety of our troops against a foe more deadly than hostile bullets, says the Scientific American. The diseases which sweep away soldiers by tens of thousands, the dread typhus, cholera and plague, are to be resisted among our forces by a scientifically planned device for disinfecting uniforms and other equipment and thus preventing disease or checking its spread.

The machines will thoroughly disinfect fifty uniforms and other articles of the soldier's equipment in one operation, doing the work in forty minutes and returning the garments to their wearers dry and ready for immediate wear, without the least injurious effect upon the material.

The disinfecting is accomplished by steam under pressure, by formaldehyde gas, or by both. The cost is nominal, while the operation is so simple that the average noncommissioned officer could master the details readily.

Twenty-one of these portable disinfectors were sent to Serbia in July, 1915, but were captured by the Germans before the unfortunate Serbs could profit by them.

Missed a Sale.

"It seems to me," said a Main street stationer, "that everybody's writing or dictating letters these days. Nine customers out of ten who come in here ask for postage stamps. This morning a woman was here browsing around. She looked over the entire stock. I thought I had a customer. After she finished the rounds she remarked: 'Oh, I nearly forgot. Have you any postage stamps?' I said yes and asked her how many she wanted. She handed me a wrapped newspaper and asked how much I thought it ought to have to carry it to its destination. I weighed the darned thing and told her a cent would be sufficient. 'Is that all?' she said. 'Well, I have a one cent stamp in my pocketbook. I thought it would come to more. Thank you very much.'"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

BIRD THAT YIELDS BUTTER

Natives of Island of Trinidad Are Not Forced to Rely on Either the Cow or the Goat.

Cows are rarities in Trinidad, so when natives of this island want butter for their bread they are compelled to seek a substitute. Fortunately for them there is another possibility close at hand; not in churned mare's or goat's milk, as one might suppose, but in the pure fat of the guncuro.

This strange bird, which makes its habitat in the darkest recesses of caves, is rarely seen abroad in daylight. Like our owl and whippoorwill, it seeks its food only after sundown.

The fledglings of the guncuro are the sources of Trinidad's "butter." They are plump little chicks, and are almost pure fat—the natives call them "oil-birds." They are taken from the nests when they are three or four weeks old, killed, and "billed."

No water is added in this odd "bolling," because of the enormous amounts of soft grease the fledglings exude in the slightest heat. As the process goes on and the fat is extracted, little remnants of the fledglings but feathers and feet. The heavy grease so obtained is very satisfying to the native appetite.

Considerable difficulty is encountered in getting to the nests, although their positions are well known to the natives. Oftentimes stagnant, or even flowing water, is in the bottom of the cavern, and the footing is treacherous and faulty. Wooden torches are commonly carried in the search for nests containing the young.

Daily Thought.

They are such dear familiar feet that go along the path with ours—feet fast or slow, but trying to keep pace; if they mistake we must be mute, not turning to impute grave faults, for they and we have such a little way to go, can be together such a little while upon the way, we must be patient while we may.—George Kilgile.

Milk for Cracked Dishes.

If cracked dishes are boiled in enough sweet milk to cover them for about forty-five minutes, the cracks will glue together and become invisible, and the dishes will stand almost as much usage as when new.

Share Your Joys.

Grief can take care of itself; but to get the full value of a joy you must have somebody to divide it with.—Mark Twain.

THE KENTUCKIAN FOR 1917

EVER since the year 1868, the HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN has been published under one name or another. In 1879 the present name was given and the present management took charge of the paper, which is now in its 39th volume. For almost 40 years it has been a faithful exponent of the growth and development of the city and county. It has written in its files a history of the county covering that long period. It has recorded the birth of three generations in some instances. It has seen the small town develop into a prosperous city with its people ever looking forward to greater things.

During all these years it has had a loyal and constant patronage from the best people of the county. It has many subscribers whose names have not been off its subscription lists in 39 years. In many other families, sons have taken their father's places. We would be ungrateful not to appreciate support like this, but we have never come to the reading public with a stronger appeal for patronage than this year. Conditions have greatly changed and paper stock is three times as high as a year ago.

Many newspapers have advanced rates but in order that the circulation may not be lessened by a higher price the KENTUCKIAN will still be sent for $2.00 a year, the old price. It will be necessary though to adhere rigidly to the cash system, since more than $1.00 must be paid in advance for the paper upon which we print 156 papers and the cost of printing leaves but little profit out of the second dollar. We are asking our old subscribers to stand by us in this crisis by renewing promptly.

All papers not paid for will be Stopped.
Don't Let Yours Stop.

The Price Will be the same $2.00 a Year
as heretofore,

B. W. COWHERD, SR.

Aged Citizen of Pee Dee Buried Here Yesterday.

Mr. B. W. Cowherd, Sr., died at his home near Pee Dee, Wednesday night, in the 81st year of his age. The immediate cause of his death was pneumonia, though he had been in feeble health for some time.

His aged wife is also quite ill with the same disease. Mr. Cowherd is survived by three children, a daughter, Mrs. Vair, with whom her parents made their home; and B. W. Cowherd, Jr., the druggist at Gracey, and John W. Cowherd, a merchant of Cadiz.

The deceased was a member of Little River Baptist church. The funeral was held at the home of his daughter and the body was brought to this city and interred in Riverside Cemetery yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Cowherd was a most excellent citizen and a consistent christian, whose long life was one of rectitude, filled with deeds of charity and goodness.

A VISIT TO THE STATE HOSPITAL.

A representative of the Enterprise visited the Western State Hospital at Hopkinsville last week. In princely style, Dr. LaRue entertained us. Under his Superintendency, the institution seems to be managed with efficiency and the employees and inmates are under splendid rules of discipline.

Drs. Sanders, Durham and Trigg, are valuable adjuncts to the management, each familiar with his work, while Mrs. Brown, the Matron, looks after the supplies and the cooking as well as the sanitary conditions of the institution.

Harry Wilson is Gate-keeper and Lewis Connor is Assistant Electrician. Harry Wilson and his wife are favorites, and Lewis Connor is an all-round handy man in showing visitors through. Mrs. Connor is looking after the sewing room and seems to be well pleased with her position. Jim Hodge and wife are doing well and are very well satisfied with their surroundings.

Mrs. Bromberg was in bed, suffering from rheumatism, but hopes to be able to visit Smithland and Livingston county friends when spring weather arrives. The sanitary condition maintained at the hospital is one of its chief points of interest. There could be learned a valuable lesson, if the house keepers of the country and towns would visit this place and see how clean it is.

The farm consists of 720 acres of land on which are grown vegetables, corn, hay, tobacco and other crops, under the management of Mr. Byars, who is a good farmer. There are 67 cows giving milk at an average flow of three gallons each, and much more milk is used every day. Steam and electric power runs everything, furnishing light, heat and water in abundance.

RAN DOWN THE WALL.

One night last week during a storm, the house of Mr. T. A. King, southwest of town, was struck by lightning. The shock was felt and after a few moments an investigation was made and a small blaze was found on the paper of one of the walls, which was easily extinguished. If it had been let alone, it soon would have spread to the woodwork of the room. No injury resulted.

In another part of the country Monday night lightning struck the house of Tom Hamilton, tore a hole in one corner and struck and demolished a loaded shotgun without discharging it.

ALMOST A TRAGEDY

Mrs. N. S. West Run Over By a Ford Car Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. N. Smith West was run over by a Ford automobile at the corner of Seventh and Main streets, at 3:30 yesterday afternoon. The car was driven by Jas. Thweatt, a juror in circuit court, who lives near Garrettsburg.

Mrs. West was crossing Main street from east to west and Mr. Thweatt came out of Seventh moving slowly and blowing his horn. Mrs. West was struck as the car turned south. The front wheels passed on either side of her body and the car was stopped just as one hind wheel touched her head as she lay under the car. Mrs. West was taken into a nearby surgeon's office and her injuries dressed.

SUPERVISORS APPOINTED

Accountant Fisher Says City's Books Are All Satisfactory.

The City Commissioners held their usual meeting Tuesday and received the report of expert accountant Allen B. Fisher on the state of the city's books for 1916. He pronounced them all right and complimented the accounting system devised by Clerk C. O. Prowse and adopted by Commissioner W. R. Wicks for his department.

The tax supervisors for 1917 were named. They are A. W. Henderson, B. F. McClaid and Ben Weaver.

WATERS REVIVAL.

The Bascom Waters meeting began in Cadiz this week and is now in full progress. The meetings are being held at the courthouse. Miss Nell Dryfoos, of Nashville, leads the song service. The Record notes this from one sermon: "He said that he knew no town in the country had ever experienced a greater revival than the one held here last September by the great Burke Culpepper, but if that great and good man of God only knew that within six months after that meeting had closed the entire town and community had relapsed into a bunch of 'back-sliders' and 'craw-fished,' he would be compelled to hide his face in shame and be humiliated beyond compare at the thought how soon his message had been forgotten by a people who seemed to have received it gladly."

He referred to the people as "Cadiz ginks" and "yaps," and with telling force portrayed the impending doom that awaited them if they did not arouse from their wicked indifference and go to work for the Master."

LITTLE LILLIAN. ROMAINE FISHER CAN TALK AGAIN

This attractive little lady is the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Fisher, 238 North St., Harrisburg, Pa. Last winter she had an attack of measles, together with a very severe cold. Just at that time Dr. S. J. Wilhelm presented Mr. Fisher with a jar of the Southern "outside" treatment—Vick's VapoRub Salve, which was just then being introduced in Harrisburg, and requested that he give this preparation a thorough trial. Mr. Fisher writes—

"I must say that our baby had such a cold on her chest and in her throat that she could hardly talk, and we could not get her to take anything internally. After we used Vick's VapoRub Salve on her breast and throat at night before going to bed she was entirely relieved. No family should be without this preparation. It is externally applied, and so can be used freely—it is absorbed through and penetrates the skin, and, in addition, is inhaled as a vapor. It has a hundred uses for the many minor ailments for which every mother is the doctor. Three sizes, 3c, 50c or $1.00.

Woman Thought She Would Die. Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ogdensburg, Wis.—"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ETTA DORRIS, Ogdensburg, Wis. Physicians undoubtedly did their best, but I with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

LARGEST OF AMERICAN CATS

Jaguar Not Only Holds Championship in Size, but He is Also Handsomest of His Class.

The Jaguar or "el tigre," as it is generally known throughout Spanish America, is the largest and handsomest of American cats. Its size and deep yellow color, profusely marked with black spots and rosettes, give it a close resemblance to the African leopard. It is, however, a heavier and more powerful animal. In parts of the dense tropical forest of South America jaguars occur, and while representing merely a color phase, they are supposed to be much fiercer than the ordinary animal. Although so large and powerful, the Jaguar has none of the truculent ferocity of the African leopard. During the years I spent in its country, mainly in the open, I made careful inquiry without hearing of a single case where one had attacked human beings.

In one locality on the Pacific coast of Guerrero I found that the harder natives had an interesting method of hunting the "tigre" during the mating period. At such times the male has the habit of leaving its lair near the head of a small canyon in the foothills early in the evening and following down the canyon for some distance, at intervals uttering a subdued roar. On moonlight nights at this time the hunter places an expert native with a short wooden trumpet near the mouth of the canyon to imitate the "tigre's" call as soon as it is heard and to repeat the cry at proper intervals. After placing the caller, the hunter ascends the canyon several hundred yards, and, gun in hand, awaits the approach of the animal. The natives have many amusing tales of the sudden exit of antried hunters when the approaching animal unexpectedly uttered its roar at close quarters.—E. W. Nelson, in the National Geographical Magazine.

INSURANCE AMONG THE SWISS

Thrifty Person May Guard Himself Against Almost Any Form of Disaster to Be Dreaded.

A system of insurance against unemployment prevails in some of the Swiss cantons, whereby persons contributing a certain sum per month are guaranteed employment or paid a weekly indemnity for the period during which they are out of work. Such persons must, however, be able to show that their unemployment is not their own fault. This plan of insurance is, however, not general, nor is it very popular, as it involves many details which make it difficult for the beneficiaries to secure the payment of the benefits.

Employees of Swiss industrial institutions are required to insure themselves against sickness or accident, and this measure also obviates to a great extent the necessity for public charity when wage-earners are deprived of their income on account of illness or accident. Under the compulsory insurance act the expense is divided between the employer and the insured. This plan works most satisfactorily, as the workers feel more secure in their employment.

There are also other systems by which employers and employees can protect themselves against the expense of medical treatment and supplies in case of illness or accident. The society for the protection of domestic servants assumes, for instance, the responsibility for the care and treatment of those enrolled upon its records.

Consecrated Bells.

Bells were anciently consecrated before they were raised to their places. This applied not only to church bells, but to others. Each was dedicated to some divine personage, saint or martyr. One of the finest bits of word painting in Shakespeare occurs in the mention of a bell when King John addressing Hubert says:

If the midnight bell Did with his iron tongue and dragon mouth.

One of the strongest pictures painted by Charles Dickens is that of the miser and usurer, Ralph Nickleby, cursing the iron-tongued midnight bell, after which, in a fit of mingled frenzy, hatred and despair he hangs himself. Commenting on Shakespeare's lines, the Book of Days says: "Here, 'brass' implies not merely that particular mixture of copper and calamine, called brass, but in a broader sense any metal which is compounded with copper."

Most Used Library.

Close upon the discovery that New York is the greatest city in the world comes the report that its public library is the most used library on earth. Its daily average number of readers is double that of the British Museum of London or the Bibliotheque Nationale of Paris, according to the report for 1915, just published, which says that 10,384,579 books were borrowed in the year and that 2,558,717 persons entered the central building at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. The war has brought a great increase in the number of people who use the library for research. It has become, the director says, an immense laboratory for scientific investigation, particularly those seeking information regarding new industries.—Indianapolis News.

The KITCHEN CABINET

We never see ourselves—never do, never did, and I suppose we never shall.

DISHES WITH CURRY.

Curry as a flavor adds variety to various dishes, which taste the American perhaps needs to cultivate. In India it is used so commonly that a dish of fish flesh or fowl without it is unpalatable.

Chicken Curry.—The fowl is cut into ten pieces.

Brown.—A medium-sized onion with a clove of garlic in an ounce of butter until well fried, then add two teaspoonfuls of curry and half a pint of broth. When boiling hot add the chicken and stew for half an hour, adding more water if needed. When the chicken is tender add a generous squeeze of lemon and a pinch of salt.

Fish Curry.—Cook together two small onions, an ounce of butter, a few cloves and after they have been stewed a few minutes add a tablespoonful of curry powder, a teaspoonful of curry paste and a pint of broth passed through a sieve and added to the mixture. Cut two pounds of fresh fish into small pieces, add to the mixture and stew half an hour before serving.

Veal Curry.—Cut two pounds of lean veal or veal into bits. Place in a stewpan three tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, an apple, cut in slices, two cloves and an ounce of butter; stir over the heat until the mixture is slightly browned. Add a pint of water, a tablespoonful of curry and a half tablespoonful of flour, when it has boiled up add the meat, then stew very slowly for an hour and a half. Serve with a squeeze of lemon juice and salt for seasoning.

Curry Sauce.—Take four large onions, two apples, a half cupful of butter and a quarter of a pound of lean ham, a blade of mace, two bay leaves, four pepper corns, and two sprigs of thyme. Cook altogether until the onions are brown and tender, then add two tablespoonfuls of curry powder, one of vinegar and two of flour, a teaspoonful of sugar and one of salt, a quart of water; cook altogether to a pulp, pass through a sieve and cook five minutes. This will keep in cool weather for a month.

SIMPLE FISH SALADS.

A can of salmon may be transformed into dozens of delightful salads using celery, pickles, coconut, cucumber, tomatoes, capers, and any number of other combinations.

A Bermuda onion. shaved fine; a little cabbage, a can of salmon, and a sour pickle, finely chopped, mixed with a good dressing, makes a most tasty salad.

Crab-Meat Salad.—Use twice as much crab-meat as celery, cut very fine, stir them into a mayonnaise dressing. Break the meat into uniform pieces, heap upon a bed of lettuce and pour the dressing over it. Serve cold.

Sardine Salad.—Cut two stalks of celery into small pieces, chop a half teaspoonful of parsley, remove the skins and bones from a box of sardines and break into small pieces. Toss all together and chill. Serve with a bottled dressing, diluted with some of the olive oil from the sardine can, if it is of good flavor.

Oyster Salad.—Small oysters are better to use for a salad, as the larger ones when cut look unattractive. Scald the oysters in their own liquor until the edges curl, drain and carefully remove all pieces of shell, set on ice to chill until serving time. To every quart of oysters allow two stalks of celery, cut into quarter-inch pieces. When time to serve, toss the oysters and celery together in a salad bowl which has been rubbed with the cut side of a clove of garlic, then pour over the following dressing: Beat the yolks of three eggs until thick, add a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne and half a teaspoonful of mustard, the grated yolks of two hard-boiled eggs and two tablespoonfuls of olive oil; pour in slowly while the mixture is being beaten. Beat until smooth, thin with three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice or mild vinegar.

Tuna Fish Salad.—This is a fish which is especially fine flavored, called the turkey of the sea. It is sometimes canned under the name of tunny fish. Use the shredded fish with celery and any salad dressing with a bit of sour pickle, finely chopped, or a tablespoonful of chow chow or pickleball.

Going Up!

By

Walter Joseph Delaney

(Copyright, 1917, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Going up!" sounded out in Frank Mitchell's sturdy tones, always cheery and invigorating, he, as usual, bright and smiling and accommodating.

He checked his elevator true to the floor level to a hundredth part of an inch just as gracefully, and opened the door of the car just as invitingly as though the timid, plainly dressed young lady who claimed his services were some grand duchess. She thanked him with voice and eyes. There was something to his hearty manner that awakened a responsive chord in the girl's lonely soul. For she was that: her face showed it and he noted that her gloves were frayed and mottled and that her coat was thin and faded.

The face he never forgot. The sweet mute appeal, rare student of human nature as he was, told him a history with patience in it, and disappointment, perhaps deprivation and suffering.

"Twelve, please," she said, as the one fellow-passenger left the car at ten. Then she started slightly as, six feet progressed, the car came to a stop with a jangle.

"Stalled!" announced Frank. "There is no danger," he spoke in a quick, thoughtful way. "They'll have it fixed in a minute or two."

She smiled and nodded in a trustful way, as though he imparted a sense of due protection. Then she asked him if Waltham & Company were on the twelfth floor. He gave her the explicit number of the office and the winning eyes thanked him again.

"Sort of feel as if that girl has left an aching void!" soliloquized Frank, as his lone passenger left the car with a bright friendly nod. "Wonder what she's after at 1215—a job, I suppose. She doesn't look as if she were buying or selling stock."

For either or both purposes people usually visited the brokerage office in question. It was three trips later when Frank checked his car, descending from the thirteenth floor.

"Going down," the girl spoke the words drearily, almost with a catch in her voice. Two years intelligent attention to his duties had embled Frank to translate most human emotions as dependent on the human face. In that of his now mute and depressed passenger he read disappointment and anxiety. She seemed very near to the point of tears. His generous impulses dictated an expression of interest. He was about to speak to her when a crowd got on at ten. The girl passed out with the others, the ground floor reached. She must have read the sympathy in Frank's face, for, as she passed him again, she uttered a faint, tremulous "Thank you." He watched her till she passed through the revolving entrance doors of the building.

"Wish I'd got a chance to talk to that young lady," soliloquized Frank. "If I am not mistaken she needs a friend, maybe food. She looked worried—worse than that, distressed."

He was awaiting the down signal from the starter a few minutes later, when he reached out his foot and drew into view an object lying in the floor of the car. It was a large manilla envelope with no direction on its outside. Frank inspected its contents to find a dozen or more stock certificates. They all applied to a certain Southwestern Land and Water company and represented a face value of a good many thousand dollars. A delicate fragrance, a faint old-time perfume, emanated from the package. He had noticed the same when the girl had entered the car. At once Frank comprehended that she had lost the papers.

He waited expectantly clear up to the noon hour, calculating that when the girl missed the papers she would naturally go back her course, seeking for them. She did not come. Frank, when relieved from duty, went to the office of Waltham & Company. After some inquiries found one of the salesmen of the bond house who recalled the visit of the young lady Frank described.

"I remember her," he told Frank. "She wished to sell some insipid shares of stock. I told her they were worthless."

"I think I could find her," said Frank and told of finding the envelope.

"I don't know her name and didn't notice the transfer signature," advised the broker. "She looked disappointed when I told her that stock was insipid—worthless it is, in fact. It's on a concern that never paid a dividend and has pulled along with little of value except its franchise since it was launched."

"All the same, I'd like to restore the papers," said Frank. "I notice that the last transfer is in the name of Bertha Simonds."

"Which is probably her name. You might advertise."

Which Frank did, but there was no result. He kept his eyes wide open when on the street. He had a longing memory of the sweet face of this momentary acquaintance and believed he could recognize her a square away. Bertha Simonds, however, if that was in reality her name, did not chance to cross her path. He kept the papers in a safe pocket, ready to restore them at a moment's notice to their rightful owner.

Over two months went by. Then the vanishing hopes of Frank Mitchell were re-inspired. His ever alert ear caught a fragment of conversation between two passengers. One was Waltham of Waltham & Company. The other had observed:

"I see that old dead South Western Land and Water company stock is—"

"Going up!" sang out Frank to a waiting passenger.

"—is going up."

"Yes, a new crowd trying to get control. We're offering eight-five per cent for all we can get."

And the very next morning Frank's heart gave a jump. The ideal of his dreams stepped aboard his car. She looked excited, she nodded to him and smiled.

"Twelfth floor, please," she said. "Do you remember I was here before?"

"Yes, I know," announced Frank promptly. "Did you lose something that day, miss?"

"Yes, some papers."

"I found them. I've been looking for you ever since," replied Frank. "Here they are."

"Oh, I'm so glad!" cried the girl excitedly. "I saw the stock advertised yesterday and I hoped there was some way I could get it restored. How shall I ever thank you?"

"Don't try—it's a pleasure," declared Frank bluntly.

Miss Bertha Simonds was gone into the broker's office for half an hour. She came out, radiant. She waited for her one, which was Frank's car.

"Would you be offended if I—?" she began, half opening her hand bag, and there she paused, about to speak of money reward for the recovery of the lost envelope, and added, "if I asked you to come to our home and see how happy your thoughtfulness will make my dear old mother," and she named an address, and she said good-bye, extending her hand, and it lingered momentarily in his glad clasp.

"Going up!" was the estimable young lady a week later, reminding Frank of a promise he had made to show her the city from the lofty roof of the great office building.

"It's quite a view," explained Frank, as they mounted to the little stairway beyond the eighteenth floor.

She gazed from the roof at the vast panorama. "Nearer heaven how small the world looks!" she murmured.

"You've said it," said Frank—"nearer heaven, indeed, being nearer you," and he told her how he loved her.

Explanations in Order.

An amusing tale was told at the "Lost Property" department of the Aberdeen (Scotland) police office, as a result of a recent gale. A gentleman called with a lady's hat, and told the story of how it came into his possession. He was on his way home and was proceeding along Union street when a blast of wind lifted his hat from his head. The hat disappeared in the darkness, and he made off in the same direction. When he came within the faint glow of a dim lamp he saw what appeared to be his hat trying to jink him. He made a grab, and seized the wandering headgear, well satisfied that his race was ended. On reaching home and removing the hat from his head, he was startled to discover that he was "sporting" a lady's felt hat, up-to-date in trimming, with a triek feather attachment. With fear and trembling, he realized the fearfully compromising situation, and explanations followed. His wife was not of a jealous turn, and accepted the story—she may yet "have her doots."

With the Autocrat.

His readers always talk of their "intimacy" with Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes; they know what kind of person he was as well as what he taught.

They know that he loved roving and horses and great trees; that he was full of sentiment for his childhood; that he liked men to be strong and sanguine, and honored the weakness of women; that he loathed all gloom and unhealthiness; that charity and tolerance were the virtues he loved, and if one could combine them with wit it was so much to the good.

Above all, one must enjoy life and live to the utmost of one's powers.

It reads something like a medical prescription, and one does not want health alone. Nevertheless, when the obvious objections are made, we need not doubt that it will benefit thousands in the future, and they will love the man who lived as he wrote.—New York Telegram.

Genuine Leather

Studebaker bodies are upholstered with genuine leather and it is of high grade quality—the same that you find on cars costing from $500.00 to $1,000.00 more than Studebaker cars.

It is soft, pliable, durable, fast-colored, and it will not work off, scale, crumble or check. We describe this leather to you because it shows the quality of material that Studebaker uses in the construction of its cars.

Expense has not been spared to cheapen the car in any particular. It is distinctly a high-grade, fine automobile. Your comfort, your safety, your pride, have all been considered in the design and construction of both FOUR and SIX.

It costs only a little more to obtain the quality that you find in Studebaker cars, and this quality is the thing that gives you real economy. "It is better to pay a little bit more and get the BEST."
